WITNESSES TELL SAME OLD STORY

Little New Evidence Brought Out in Trial of Victor Allen.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Winchester, Va., September 7.—In the case of the Commonwealth vs. Victor Allen, charged with killing Commonwealth's Attorney Foster, the Commonwealth proceeded with its introduction in chief up to the noon hour. The trend of the examination was to show establishing of a company and the identity of parties and the parts they took in the shooting up of the court. Frank Fowler, the deputy sheriff, testified the same as on the former trial.

Quincy Snicker said he saw Claude Allen, the evening before the shooting, go up to Floyd at the stove and feel his pulse, and heard Floyd ask him, "Are the boys all ready?" On cross-examination the question was intended to throw doubt on the testimony of Claude by confusing him with Daniel Strickland, but the witness seemed quite certain that it was Claude.

W. C. Queenberry, deputy clerk, gave his version of the affair, and the part he took in it. While he did not actually see Floyd Allen fire at W. M. Foster, he saw the smoke from a revolver from the position occupied by Floyd go directly in the direction of Foster. Parties had for the moment stepped between Floyd and himself, which prevented him from actually seeing the pistol. The witness said he fired twice at Floyd Allen, and then turned and fired one shot at Wesley Edwards, who was also shooting in the direction of the court officers. Robert Blankenship was used to identify a block out from the door of the jury room. The last trial with him embedded therein and corresponding in call with the ball fired by Queenberry at Sidney Edwards. Homer Letwick, Isaac Martin, J. M. Bell and T. S. Coleman testified as to threats to "make a hole in the court" by Floyd Allen, substantially the same as in former trials.

Court adjourned at 1 o'clock until Monday morning.

The jury, after a newly born infant which early this morning had been thrown into a well in the rear of a house on the west side of Prince Street, between Fayette and Yaffe Streets, attracted occupants of the house, who notified Policeman Nicholson, who notified Policeman Nicholson, a squad of policemen headed by Chief Goods soon arrived on the scene and additional help was obtained and a man lowered into the well and he succeeded, after considerable difficulty, in recovering the child from his perilous position. The infant was taken in charge by Policeman Campbell and conveyed to the hospital, where it is reported to be but little the worse from its thrilling experience. It encountered a short time after first seeing light of day. The infant weighs twelve pounds. The police immediately afterward began an investigation and a woman whom they suspected as being the mother of the child at first denied it. Later, under pressure, she admitted being the mother of the infant, the police say. She is now a patient at the hospital. The mother, however, denied having placed the child in the well, which is ten feet deep. It is expected that the authorities may prosecute the case. No action will, however, be taken for the present time, it is said.

James Cunningham, colored, who conducts a restaurant at Mayo and Broad Street, was a witness for Jennings. He said that the other had not fired at the Smith, but discharged his weapon three times in the air. He also said that he had not jumped upon the hat as testified, but accidentally kicked it with his foot. Similar testimony was rendered by Charles Cunningham, Arthur Clark and Elijah Woodson, all colored.

Attorney G. K. Pollock, for Ellish, submitted his case without argument, while Colonel Anderson admitted that the prosecution had not made out its case and it was dismissed by Justice Grutchfield.

After the trial Captain Barfoot made the charges against Jennings and submitted them to Major Werner.

Serious Kidney Disease Treated By an Old-Fashioned Doctor

S. B. HARTMAN, M. D.

In 1860 I was practicing medicine in Millersville, Pennsylvania, a thriving farming community. A prominent citizen of that locality called at my office one day in a very feeble condition. So much so he had to be assisted in alighting from his wagon.

I found on questioning him that he had been afflicted for about two years. He had consulted various doctors, among them a specialist from Philadelphia. They pronounced his disease to be Bright's disease of the kidneys. He was gradually failing in strength, losing flesh rapidly, and altogether presented a very pitiable spectacle, the remnant of a once strong and happy man.

I had been treating a neighbor of his successfully. The neighbor had highly recommended me, and thus it was he had come to me.

He told me that the doctors had practically given up his case as hopeless and he felt free to consult any other physician. I hesitated to take the case, as I felt sure I could not do anything more than the other physicians had done. I told him so, yet he insisted upon my prescribing. I was a graduate of the Jefferson

Medical College at Philadelphia, and as one of the consulting physicians had been a professor in that college it seemed to me quite unlikely that I would be able to do any more than had been done, but I prescribed what seemed to be the best thing under the circumstances.

He went away and in a week he returned saying he was no better, that he was still losing ground. He judged that he had taken the same medicine before. No doubt he had. But he wished me to prescribe again. I did so.

This went on for about two months, the patient failing all the time, and I was becoming thoroughly discouraged with the case.

One day the patient said to me, "Doctor, why don't you give me the medicine you gave my neighbor? We all thought he would die, but your medicine cured him. This was why I came to you. Why not give me the same medicine you gave him?"

"But," I said, "your neighbor did not have kidney disease. It was a bowel complaint that I prescribed for in his case. I remember I gave him the Neutralizing Mixture that I make a great deal of use of in bowel diseases."

"Well, I want some of the same medicine you gave him. It worked wonders with him and I believe it will with me."

"But," I said, "this is not a medicine for kidney disease."

"Well, since you seem to be like the rest of the doctors, you cannot help me, who try the medicine that helped my neighbor."

After some hesitation I concluded to give him a bottle of it. In ten days he returned. He at once began to berate me in no complimentary words, saying:

"You knew very well this medicine would help me. You held it back merely to get more fees for treating me. From the first the medicine has helped me and I have made rapid improvement. If I could have had this medicine a year ago I should have been saved a great deal of expense and loss of time."

I replied that I was glad the medicine had helped him. I was somewhat confused by his brusque manner and rough speech. I gave him another bottle of medicine. Did not see him again for about three weeks. Once more he called at my office for another bottle of medicine.

He was seventy-five years old.

which was his last call. A month or so afterwards a neighbor of his called and got a bottle of the same medicine, saying that my patient was practically a well man, attending to his duties about his large farm.

I had given him the Neutralizing Mixture, which was a remedy that I had used before only for bowel diseases. The same remedy that has since been sold under the name of Peruna. I could not quite understand how it was that Peruna should operate so beneficially in such seemingly different diseases. I had not yet grasped the correct philosophy of disease. I did not then clearly comprehend that catarrh may affect the kidneys as well as the bowels. Nothing of that sort was taught in the books in those days. It took me years before I clearly comprehended that catarrh was a disease liable to attack any organ of the body.

Catarrh is a disease of the mucous membranes. The mucous membranes line every organ, duct and cavity in the body. Thus it is catarrh may settle anywhere where there is a mucous membrane.

Peruna is my remedy for all these cases. I insist upon it, however, that Peruna is not a cure-all. I use it for just one disease, catarrh. But as catarrh is liable to affect so many different places, disturb so many different functions, derange so many different organs, it does seem to many people as if I regarded Peruna as a cure-all.

The above narrative is simply one of the many cases in my early practice that brought me to comprehend the wonderful efficacy of Peruna in such a variety of diseases. The kidneys may be affected by other diseases than catarrh, but the average case of kidney disease is catarrh of the kidneys. All cases of Bright's disease begin with catarrh of the kidneys. This being true, and it also being true that Peruna is a catarrh remedy, it follows that a great many cases of kidney disease would be benefited by Peruna. Peruna is for sale at all drug stores.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—Many persons are making inquiries for the old-time Peruna. To such would say, this formula is now put out under the name of KATARRH, manufactured by KATARRH COMPANY, Columbus, Ohio. Write them and they will be pleased to send you a free booklet.

IN MEMORIAM

PAYNE.—In sad but loving remembrance of my dear grandmother, CATHERINE PAYNE, who departed this life six months ago, March 7, 1912.

Home is dark, O God, how dreary,
London, London, ever so bright,
We listen for her voice till weary;
Listen, but we hear it not.

Time flies, but never will it bring
The dear one to whom we cling,
Flow often, standing near thy tomb,
I wish for thee the dearest bloom,
Thy face our minds will ever see;
Forgotten thou shalt never be.
